La cronología recoge las fechas principales de la historia de Singapur como plaza comercial y financiera, desde los primeros registros chinos y javaneses de Temasek en el siglo XIV hasta el otoño de 2026. Cada entrada remite al capítulo que la explica y cita sus fuentes. Las cuatro primeras secciones siguen las partes cronológicas A a D. Las secciones posteriores siguen las partes temáticas E a K, cada una en orden cronológico, de modo que quien se interese por el arbitraje, el comercio de materias primas o los criptoactivos encuentre juntas las fechas pertinentes.

El volumen paralelo sobre Ginebra contiene una cronología elaborada con los mismos principios. Leídas en paralelo, ambas listas muestran por qué caminos tan distintos llegaron los dos centros a una posición similar: Ginebra, a través de cuatro siglos de banca privada dentro de un Estado federal; Singapur, a través de un puerto franco, un orden jurídico colonial y, después de 1965, un Estado desarrollista que construyó deliberadamente sus instituciones financieras. Cuando las fuentes discrepan sobre una fecha, la entrada indica las variantes o la fecha que adopta el capítulo. El Derecho y los datos se presentan a septiembre de 2026, con algunas novedades posteriores hasta principios de noviembre de 2026.
